Fixed Table

Created by 2B Studio - Justin Burton for Leland

The Fixed table is like one of Michigan's many bridges - a mindful balance of engineering and artistry. Although it stands out, Fixed becomes one with its environment, more and more as time passes.

Multipurpose Accomodation

A standing-height work surface for one or a gathering table for many, Fixed is ideal for people to have quick meetings or take a refreshing break. It's also extremely adaptable and accommodates wires and cables in the most intuitive way. The combination of steel and wood is really what sets the Fixed table apart—bringing strength and natural elegance into any workspace.

Anchor Your Space

A table tends to be the focus of any room it's in. It becomes an anchor. A destination. Aside from accommodating people, tables at work must also accommodate technology. And that's what Leland's new Fixed table does extremely well.

“One of the driving criteria of the table was the considered integration of power. To accomplish this, we made the legs and rails hollow. This allows for the power to be seamlessly routed to the floor without sacrificing the design.” 2B Studio

Many ways in many spaces

Leland's Fixed table was designed to convey visual and physical strength, but also a subtle elegance. The honest expression of steel rails and joints expresses the table's engineering, while a top surface of forbo or terrazzo adds a warm materiality. A gathering table for teams, or a standing-height work surface for one, Fixed works in many ways, for many people, in many spaces.
